

SOCIETY and CLUBS

By ALINE THOMPSON

THURSDAY was notable for one of the largest and most elaborate weddings of the summer, when Miss Jennie Harbord Fry became the bride of Raymond Walsh, of Sacramento, California, at "Bright View," the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Fry.

It was a charming at fresco affair, the lovely gardens of the residence making an artistic background for the ceremony, which was solemnized in the morning. Rev. James Elvin read the impressive ring service, and the guests included about 100 of the most prominent families of Salem.

The setting for the wedding resembled a lovely Italian garden abloom with myriads of pink, lavender, blue and yellow flowers.

The blossoms in huge urns and standards were placed about the lawn, and here and there were garden seats. An artistic lattice entwined with Oregon Grape and greenery was arranged for the ceremony under madroña trees from which hung great baskets of pink and white carnations. There were loads of carnations used, with the pink predominating in the decorations. At either end of the lattice were huge standards of carnations, snapdragons, lilies, foxglove and delphinium all massed with tall lacey sprays of wild carnegie. Banking the lattice were hydrangeas in the pinkish-lavender hues.

Society will miss for the next month or so Mrs. Charles L. McNary, who left today for Washington, D. C., to join her husband, Senator McNary.

Mrs. McNary will spend the summer in Washington, returning home sometime in August, accompanied by Senator McNary.

To bid adieu to this popular matron, Mrs. George F. Rodgers yesterday entertained delightfully with an informal bridge. Her guests numbered about 16 prominent matrons who are close friends of Mrs. McNary, and are members of the Thursday bridge club.

Mrs. J. G. Richardson entertained yesterday with a delightful bridge, honoring her house guest, Mrs. Ward J. Wisecarver of McMinnville.

During the week just closed another pioneer family of Oregon, added their names to the long list of golden wedding pairs, when Mr. and Mrs. John L. Riggs received the felicitations of their friends at a large reception, Monday night at their home on Summer street.

It was indeed a gala occasion and one for which relatives and friends gathered from near and far. The celebration of the occasion opened with festivities early in the afternoon, when they were surrounded only by relatives. Over 40 members of the family gathered together in recognition of the event, and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Riggs also opened their hospitable doors to many of their old friends, who numbered about 100.

Decorating the house throughout were masses of golden yellow flowers. There were roses, poppies, marigolds and other yellow-toned blossoms, all arranged in the various rooms.

The table which was centered with a basket of deep yellow roses, presided over by Mrs. Barton Riggs, Mrs. Ralph Riggs and Mrs. Rannie Mulkey.

To do something different each year in presenting to the jaded recital goes at this season has always been the aim of Miss Beatrice Shelton, one of Salem's piano teachers, and in the presentation of her advanced pupils on last Thursday night she achieved what was a popular success but an artistic triumph.

A great many recitals are boring; this was not, and it was due to the careful planning of Miss Shelton. It takes extra labor to get out of the usual rut of recitals but the interest of the audience fully repaid, in this instance, all the effort it took.

"A Day in a Garden" was the theme of the evening's program, and the numbers were cunningly arranged to represent the various hours of the day. This idea was further enlarged by bits of poetry appropriately appended to each selection, which also helped characterize it. This feature gave an added charm and insight into the theme of the piece.

These things helped wonderfully to accentuate the entertainment of the evening. They were only a setting, however, for the students of Miss Shelton in showing their excellent technique, careful phrasing, originality and imaginative interpretation. All of the students did exceptionally well and gave credit to themselves and their instructor.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin W. Kelley on South Capitol street, last Sunday evening, June 17th, when their daughter, Miss Olive Elizabeth Kelley, became the bride of James Edgar Chinn of Oregon City, in the presence of about 40 guests.

At eight o'clock the sweet bridal song, "At Dawning," was sung by Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Portland, after which the bride party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and stood beneath a beautiful arch fashioned of ivy, ferns and roses. Rev. J. Stanford Moore performed the simple but impressive ring ceremony. After the congratulations a dainty buffet luncheon was served.

The decorations throughout the house were confined to pink and green color scheme.

The bride wore an attractive gown of white crepe charmeuse with full length veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses and white sweet peas. The bride's maid, Miss Ethel Kelley, a sister of the bride, wore a pretty frock of pink crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Little Miss Ethelwynne Kelley was flower girl.

HER WAR BONNET—HERE IS THE "PAUL REVERE" HAT, ONLY one of half a dozen militant looking new millinery models now being offered. This Paul Revere hat resembles the one worn by the famous hero in almost every respect. Of course the black silk velvet grain and the cascade of red and blue ribbon and silver braid are much finer material than could be found in that patriot's hat.

From the Practical Aspect

WHY A GOOD MOTORCYCLE IS A BETTER INVESTMENT THAN A CHEAP AUTOMOBILE.

ECONOMY
The EXCELSIOR Motorcycle can be run at a total cost, including Tires, Gasoline, Oil and Depreciation of 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c a mile as compared with a running cost of 8c a mile, which is the lowest cost of operating the most economical automobile. Repair charges are something almost unknown to EXCELSIOR riders.

EFFICIENCY
The compactness of the EXCELSIOR engine, which is developed to the highest point of mechanical efficiency, is the secret of its giant strength and smooth running. All useless power wasting parts have been eliminated.

UTILITY
There are a hundred places to which an EXCELSIOR will take you that are absolutely out of the reach of any automobile. It can be used for business, pleasure and touring, or with an EXCELSIOR delivery van attached the most economical and efficiently reliable means of delivery for any business requiring something light and quick.

CONVENIENCE
